Breath-taking photos along the Hemlock Lake southern and eastern edge were taken by John Larysz on the Sunday, January 3 Springwater Trails' walk along the shore. Fourteen people came out for the low water stroll over the rocks and shells.

For all of John Larysz' photos of the highlights from the Springwater Trails' Hemlock Lake hike visit <http://larysz.com/Images/2021/January%20-%20Hemlock%20Lake/index.php>. Saralinda writes "Now that we've seen the southeast corner of Hemlock Lake from the beachfront, on Sunday January 10 we will explore the opposite corner of Hemlock Lake on the Bur Oak Trail and the Walnut Trail, both on State land within the Canadice Hemlock State Forest. One section is a snowmobile trail, and the other follows in the woods parallel to the shoreline. For those who enjoy stony beach walking, there will be an opportunity for that too." In both cases, the Zebra Mussel shells are evident along the shoreline as pictured in one of John's photos. You will want to learn more about these invasive species in our lakes.

What is left to do in January on a Christmas Tree Farm? Plenty, as the paperwork piles up, like the tax records (W-2's) and payments (Trees for Troops, Christmas Tree Promotion Board, Sales Tax), the inventory of trees and equipment, the shop clean-up, the planning for ways to save on labor costs and equipment maintenance, and deer management by 8 foot fencing which seems to be the best way to keep the animals from destroying many seedling and grown tree buds in the spring. Figuring the illusive “what it costs to grow a Christmas tree” is a yearly mystery, as it takes 7 to 12 years to grow a tree for sale and accounting is not a skill easily mastered. Fortunately the answers are there and they only need to be acted upon. Looking back on 2020, we can say it was a good year on the All Western Evergreen Nursery & Christmas Tree Farm and we thank all our retail and wholesale customers for their patronage and our staff of high school youth and family for their perseverance in the face of Covid and weather challenges.
